New life member

At the Presentation night on December 13 George Spanos's dedication to the VHRR and historic motor sport was recognised with the award of a Life Membership. George's commitment to the club is long standing. He raced his lovely Elfin GTS for many years and now supports Wayne Sayers in keeping this beautifully presented car on the track. George is a founding member of the Wednesday Group where club members come together to share stories and enjoy each other's company. In his role of Librarian he keeps our motor sport history safe. George is a true gentleman and good friend. Congratulations on your Life Membership from us all.

The VHRR have met with CAMS

this week in order to define the detailed requirements of the recently introduced roll bar/ROPS padding.

CAMS have provided a copy of the Scrutineers Newsletter on this matter and this will be placed on the VHRR website next weekend (6/7 Feb) and a VHRR flier providing detail with further explanation will be included in the mail out of Further Regulations to competitors that same weekend.

Also discussed at that meeting was the proposed introduction of Crack testing. It appears that this will not impact on cars competing at Phillip Island and the finer points are to be included in the Club's flier next weekend.

Regards Bob Harborow

"Tool room copies"

- should they be allowed in races?

Richard Batchelor poses the question . . .

Although replicas of historic race cars are not a new development, the UK historic mags are now writing about so called tool room copies, which they claim are so millimetre perfect that parts are interchangeable with the real thing. And they are allowing them in races! Advertisements in the UK historic mags for tool room copy cars (samples enclosed) usually mention the availability of FIA documentation which will allow these up-market replicas to race anywhere. The Brits appear happy to allow these fakes to race with genuine historic race cars; in fact I believe they have been doing this for years. Presumably the tool room copy tag was invented to distinguish them from less accurate replicas but in the meantime I reckon Joe Public in the grandstands is being duped.

I have no problem with replicas being allowed in demonstrations or in regularity events, provided that they are not passed off as the real thing, but surely they should not be allowed to race against genuine historic race cars. Companies such as Proteus in the UK (C Type Jags), Pur Sang in Argentina (Bugattis, Alfas) and locally Robnell (Cobras) and Roaring Forties (Ford GT40s) build fine replicas. However surely a line in the sand must be drawn to prevent such cars taking part in historic racing against genuine examples of these marques.

Apart from fooling gullible spectators, and annoying people with a huge investment in genuine historic race cars, there is another issue at stake here. The builder of a "tool room copy" might find it hard to resist pressure from the person who has commissioned it to incorporate subtle and undetectable mods during the build process. Would it not be easy to change the suspension pick-up points slightly to allow, say, a degree or two of negative camber, or to fit the engine with titanium conrods to allow an extra 1000 rpm, or to cast a few items in magnesium rather than aluminium? To digress slightly into the topic of modified 'genuine' historic race cars for a moment, this sort of activity has been happening for years in the UK, and has given rise to anomalies such as Cooper-Bristols (probably on their third chassis and dimensionally different from the genuine 1953 article) beating Maserati 250Fs, something which never happened in period. Already I suspect there are more Lister-Jaguars racing than were ever built originally. I was spectating at the recent Goodwood Revival meeting and felt that at least one the Listers racing looked pretty suss. A photo caption in a recent issue of Motor Sport (refer montage) indicates that a Lister-Jag replica was allowed to race there in 2008, so I should not have been surprised. Interestingly, somebody recently purchased all the drawings, jigs, assets and intellectual property of the original Lister companies and has invited owners of more recent Lister replicas to have their cars vetted and – if they pass examination – be granted some sort of authentication, even if they were built decades after Brian Lister stopped production in 1959! Surely the new owner of Lister is debasing the intellectual property which he has spent good money acquiring? Owners of genuine Listers must be foaming at the mouth!

As you can see from the advertisement the new owner of Lister has gone one step further and is intending to build Lister-Jags again. There is actually a precedent for this as Brian Lister built some Lister-Jaguar replicas in 1990, so-called "continuation cars." As time passes the ancestry of all Lister-Jags will become increasingly blurred, especially as Lister's original chassis records were reportedly chucked out after production ceased in 1959.

Can any of our members who have raced in the UK and Europe throw further light on what is being allowed over there and what is not? I suspect that with the sky-rocketing values of genuine historic race cars, historic racing (so called) in the UK and Europe will simply become a replica fest, and unless we are very vigilant some of these fakes will surely find their way into historic races in Australia.

Special Invitation to Pre-1960 Sports & Racing Cars 5th & 6th April Wakefield Park

The Festival of Sporting Cars (FoSC) is assembling a special field of racing and sports cars from those glorious days of motor sport at our April meeting.

We intend this to become the one and only annual gathering of pre-60's cars – well-known or not so well-known – with whatever log book or competitor licence you hold. The meeting will be permitted by AASA and we will accept both CAMS and AASA documentation.

This being an Invitation event, we'd also like to hear from owners of pre-1960 replicas and/or cars built more recently, with period parts.

It will be a weekend where possibly the greatest breadth and depth of these cars ever will come together from NSW and beyond to compete for enjoyment and camaraderie.

FoSC is all about you having the most enjoyment on the track as possible and the best value for your dollar. Private Practice will be available on the Friday and garages and carports can be hired to protect your pride and joy.

We will have photographs of the fields on our FoSC website following the meeting for free download – see the special fields from our last meeting on the website now.

Adelaide Motorsport Festival:

12-13th April 2014

The Adelaide Motorsport Festival is to be held on April 12 (Hillclimb) and Sunday 13th (Sprint). The Sprint element will be held on a section of the Clipsal 500 track within the Adelaide Parklands. The event focus is historic open wheelers, in particular F1 cars, however categories for other historics are open for entries. The event is followed up by The Historic Collingrove Hillclimb and the traditional Easter Historic Mallala race meet the following weekend, meaning there is a huge amount of racing on offer over that 7 day period in Adelaide.
